

CMU Public Television focuses on Michigan

We're all proud of what Michigan has to offer and at CMU Public Television we make it a point to showcase the stories that shape the Great Lakes state.

Our signature program is Destination Michigan where you can tour Michigan from the comfort of your La-Z-Boy (Michigan-based in Monroe). Enjoy a new episode at 9 p.m. Thursday, April 27 to share the experience of an alpaca farm, visit an institute where people are frozen in hopes of getting a second shot at life, and see the art work being created at the Detroit Design Center. We're also keeping an eagle eye on an eagle's nest where two eaglets are ready to burst out of their shells.

Destination Michigan is part of a Thursday night line-up of programs we refer to as MI Thursdays. The evening kicks off at 8 p.m. with Wilderness Journal followed at 8:30 p.m. by Michigan Out of Doors. Destination is at 9 and we cap the evening off at 9:30 p.m. with Under the Radar Michigan.

But that's not all. This Old House, seen Saturdays at noon on CMU Public Television, is spending 10 weeks in Detroit restoring a vacated and rundown home to its original beauty. It's all part of a bigger effort to renovate and revive the Motor City.
